Sports Management Internships at HBCUs

Friday, March 19, 2021, 11am CST (US)

In this webinar, CCWT Director Matthew Hora will discuss the impact of sport management internship programs at historically black college and universities (HBCUs) with Dr. Jason Perry from Howard University. The webinar will focus on the potential for the unique culture of HBCUs and students' experiences and racial identities to impact how they experience an internship, and will feature insights from Perry's 2017 dissertation entitled "A Case Study Examining a Sport and Recreation Management Internship Program at a Historically Black University."

Dr. Jason Perry holds the rank of Assistant Professor of Sport Management in the Department of Health, Human Performance & Leisure Studies at Howard University. Dr. Perry received his Bachelors of Science degree in Sport Management from Winston-Salem State University, a Masters of Science in Sport Studies from High Point University, and his Doctor of Education degree in Educational Leadership and Management with the concentration of Athletic Administration from Drexel University.
