

Webinar Series

Internship Opportunities in Community and Tribal Colleges

Wednesday, October 7, 2020, 11am CST (US)

Join us for an informal conversation where Dr. Hora will talk with Julie and Crystal about internship opportunities and characteristics, career prep and readiness, and Tribal College social-economic structures.

Julie E. Lucero is an Assistant Professor, School of Community Health Sciences, and Director, Latino Research Center, at the University of Nevada, Reno. Her research is grounded in the community based participatory approach to research. Directing her research is the expectation that research outcomes benefit the researched population through development and implementation of interventions, treatment, and/or policy.

Crystal LoudHawk-Hedgepeth, enrolled member of the Dine' Nation, is a Research Associate at the American Indian College Fund, where she helps execute the College Fund's systematic research initiatives with Tribal Colleges. Crystal has over ten years of research experience managing projects from clinical investigations to educational research.

Use the following link to register:

<https://bit.ly/33h2dh4>

Webinar host: Dr. Matthew T. Hora (UW-Madison)

Special Guest: Julie E. Lucero, University of Nevada, Reno

Special Guest: Crystal LoudHawk-Hedgepeth, American Indian College Fund

The Center for Research on College-Workforce Transitions (CCWT) is an initiative of the Wisconsin Center for Education Research (WCER). CCWT's mission is to conduct and support research, critical policy analysis, and public dialogue on how college students experience the transition to the workforce. CCWT strives to inform policies, programs, and practices that promote academic and career success for all learners.

Wisconsin Center for Education Research
SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON